

Autorinnen und Autoren / Contributors

Peter Birke, PD Dr. phil., works at the University of Göttingen.

Sergio Bologna, born in Trieste in 1937, former lecturer on the history of the labour movement at Padua University, member of the academic advisory council of the Foundation for Social History; latest publication: The Rise of the European Self-employed Workforce, Milan 2018.

Simon Duckheim, Institute for the History of Medicine, Gießen, main research areas: medicine under National Socialism, concepts of social and “racial” hygiene during the Weimar Republic.

Rudi Friedrich, Offenbach a. M, executive director of the association “Connection e. V.” which supports conscientious objectors worldwide, [www.connection-ev.org].

Ralf Hoffrogge, Historian specialized in trade unions, economic democracy and historical communism research, working at the Leibniz Centre for Contemporary History Potsdam and the Institute for Social Movements at Ruhr University Bochum.

Johanna Neuhauser, Mag. Dr., Institute for Sociology, University of Vienna.

Hartmut Rübner, Dr. phil., member of the editorial committee of Sozial.Geschichte Online and research fellow at the Foundation for Social History (Stiftung für Sozialgeschichte des 20. Jahr hunderts), Bremen.

Christian Sperneac-Wolfer, Institut für Sozialforschung, Frankfurt am Main.

Karmina collective, research and activist collective, working, among others, on labour struggles in Eastern Europe, based on the WWW and in Bratislava, Slovakia. Some texts in German and English can be found here: www.karmina.red.